

HISTORY HAS A FUTURE IN DURHAM

Help preserve Durham's unique legacy through the Durham History Hub, new home of the Museum of Durham History. We have big plans for our small site, and they're already taking shape.

PHASES

One: Complete basic renovation for office and meeting space, programming and events. Third Fridays, CenterFest, school holiday and summer camp programs, afternoon pop-up museums, and gazebo performances are all on the agenda. We'll also keep our Arts Banners on display around town and maintain unique web resources such as History Beneath Our Feet.

Two: As funds are raised, we'll complete the Hub's upfit and exhibits and open our doors in 2013 with regular, free public hours.

You can get in on the ground floor of this grassroots effort:

- Become a member.
- Share your ideas.
- Make a financial gift.
- Volunteer your time and expertise.

Visit us online or fill out and mail the form on the reverse. We'd love to hear from you.

IMAGINE ...

THE DURHAM HISTORY HUB!

Picture Durham's first history museum, a lively space sparking interest wherever you turn ... rotating exhibits about our civil rights struggle, music and the arts, healthcare, higher education, entrepreneurship. Compare photos from Then & Now, explore a touchscreen timeline, and turn the kids loose in a hands-on play area while you watch a video in the resource center.

EXPECT SURPRISES

ENGAGE

Tap your feet to the Piedmont blues, catch the cadence of a tobacco auctioneer, take a self-guided walk to nearby landmarks. And add your own memories in the Story Booth, sharing Durham experiences and nuggets of family lore.

SNEAK PEEK

Stop by the former bus transfer station at 500 W. Main St. for a preview, and you'll find a museum-in-progress, already offering online resources and on-site programming.

We're eager to engage you in an exciting conversation about Durham's past ... and your museum's future.
